

Connection to a home theater system

To connect a terminal to a home theatre system, use a RCA cable from the DIGITAL AUDIO COAXIAL output of the terminal to a connector of the same type on the home theatre system. Then select the corresponding input on your home theatre system. For optimal audio quality, you can use an optic cable if the home theatre system has the connector. However this type of cable is fragile and expensive.

